The Jerpoint Story

In 1979, when Keith and Kathleen Leadbetter had the idea to convert the Dutch barn adjacent to their farmhouse into a glassblowing studio, their ambition was simply, to create beautiful and functional handmade glassware for everyday use. Thirty years on that ambition remains the same.

Keith and Kathleen were inspired to start Jerpoint Glass Studio when Keith was involved with setting up the hot glass department in the National College for Art and Design. Having received his formal training in the prestigious Orrefors Glass Factory in Sweden, Keith travelled extensively throughout Europe enhancing his skills. Kathleen is a self-taught artist with a natural flair for aesthetics, form and colour. Their skill and passion for glass has now been passed onto their children who are all actively involved in the business.

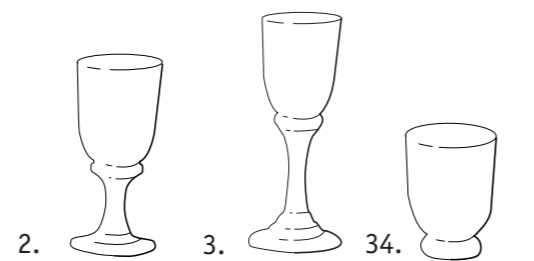

At the family-run glassblowing studio in Co. Kilkenny, their team of skilled craftsmen use simple hand tools and 2000-year-old methods to blow, balance and manipulate flowing red-hot molten into the Jerpoint shapes. From the fiery furnace to your table each piece of Jerpoint is individually made by hand. If you look closely you will see that each piece of Jerpoint Glass is as unique as its maker, with its own personality and characteristics.

With thirty years experience in handmade glass, Jerpoint has become synonymous with quality, style and colour. Jerpoint Glass Studio creates a wide range of glassware by hand, with its distinctive colour palette, Jerpoint will make a welcomed addition to any home.
